Your doctor has asked that your symptoms be evaluated with a CT (Computerized Tomography) study with iodinated intravenous contrast. This contrast is given by injection into a vein and helps provide the radiologist with additional information that may not be available without intravenous contrast.

The contrast agent you will receive has been approved as safe and effective by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA). During the injection, you may experience a temporary warm sensation to “a really hot feeling”. This is not an allergic reaction and is very common.

As with any medication, a small chance exists that you may have a reaction to it. Minor and temporary reactions include pain at the injection site, nausea, headache, dizziness, itching, rash or hives. Rarely, a more serious allergic reaction may occur (including facial swelling, difficulty breathing, or low blood pressure) requiring treatment. The odds of an extremely severe reaction, including death, are very rare. Your chances of a reaction may be increased if you have had a previous allergic reaction to iodinated contrast, are allergic to other drugs or foods, have asthma. Please inform the technologist if any of these situations apply to you.

Some patients with certain risk factors may also be at increased risk for a rare complication called Contrast Induced Nephropathy. As such, we screen at-risk patients by obtaining kidney function studies prior to contrast injection.

Please answer the questions below.
